Training Guidelines

TRAINING GUIDELINES

1. OVERVIEW

The Chartered Accountancy qualification is a premier accounting qualification introduced under the Chartered Accountants Ordinance, 1961. The Institute of Chartered Accountants of Pakistan (hereinafter referred to as the 'Institute') was established in the year 1961 as a statutory autonomous body to regulate the profession of chartered accountancy. In addition to regulating the profession, granting membership and conducting examinations, one of the main functions of the Institute is to facilitate education and training of prospective chartered accountants and continuing professional development of its Members. This qualification has a unique characteristic of imparting theoretical education and practical training simultaneously. The principal purpose in developing these regulations is to provide the Members / Training Organizations a complete and updated system to conform to international standards and best practices for imparting professional education and training especially instilling a commitment to life-long learning.

2. DEVELOPMENTS

The accounting profession faces unprecedented environmental forces that emphasize the need for appropriate and relevant professional experience for Members. These forces include the globalisation of business, rapid development and implementation of new information technology and expansion of services provided by accountants. In view of these forces and trends, it is important that future Members of the profession acquire relevant professional education and competence based practical experience to allow them to work more effectively in the rapidly changing working environment.

Practical training is a blend of in-depth knowledge and experience of practical aspects of the education a chartered accountant receives. Further, a chartered accountant is expected to inculcate a professional attitude and develop interpersonal skills.

Most worldwide professional bodies have formalised and redesigned their training requirements to recognise the importance of training and practical experience provided to professional accountants.

3. OUR APPROACH

The Institute has kept pace with developments in professional education and its policies have generally been consistent with that of other accountancy bodies. In order to further strengthen the aspects of gaining practical experience, Training Regulations have been devised. Training Regulations generally cover the requirements as stipulated in International Education Standard (IES 5) – "Practical Experience Requirement", however, Training Organizations and their Members Responsible for Training are advised to refer to IES 5, other relevant standards, pronouncements and guidelines of IFAC for further details.

Training Regulations are designed to ensure that future Members acquire skills and values necessary for responding to the dynamics of the profession. This includes introduction of redefined scope and responsibility for both Students and Members. Training Regulations cover the training that should be imparted to Students registered for the chartered accountancy qualification. The Training Regulations intend to balance exposure of Students to work within the professional practice as well as outside the Training Organization with the additional features of interpersonal and professional skills development.

In view of the foregoing Training Regulations address the following:

- Advising Members in practice of their obligations and responsibilities towards their Students
- Prescribing the responsibilities of Students including the role they are expected to play in the professional functions of the Organization and matters relating to the Institute
- Endeavoring that the Students receive proper, planned and coordinated training, structured in such a way that there is a blend of work experience and theoretical education
- Suggesting nature and scope of practical training and formulating regulations specifying technical content and progression in a systematic and structured manner
- Identifying and laying down duties of a Member Responsible for Training (MRT) for imparting adequate practical and theoretical training to Student at the Training Organization
- Covering different aspects of training outside the Training Organization such as training in industry, secondment and exchange programme
- Prescribing format of Students' Training Records to be maintained by all Training Organizations
- Prescribing suitable formats for recording and review.
- Prescribing methodology for appraisal of Training Organizations and their regular monitoring
- This provision would increase the quota of Students for Small and Medium Practices (SMPs).

4. INTRODUCTORY GUIDANCE

4.1 Training Programme

Training Organizations would make arrangements to implement a training programme for their Students. An ideal training programme would include:

- a. Acquisition of knowledge
To enhance the understanding and knowledge of the Student in the core and other disciplines, organization, functioning of business and inculcate the attitude of life-long learning.
- b. Development of skills by applying theoretical knowledge to practical situations
The practical training should encompass sufficient range and depth of work experience providing opportunity to the Student, by participation in activities performed by professional accountant and imparting necessary skills to apply theoretical knowledge to practical problems faced by the Student. It shall make the Student aware of the environment in which services will be provided to the clients and prepare them for the same.

- c. Information Technology skills
The training programme should encourage the Student to make maximum use of computers to achieve skills and proficiency in Information Technology.
 - d. Disciplined attitude and professional orientation
Practical training scheme should also have the effect of disciplining and conditioning the mind of the Student so that he gets attuned to the work environment and learns the virtues of patience and methodical work. Apart from independence and integrity, training must imbibe professional orientation towards clients, social consciousness and the attitude of life-long learning. Development of skills to communicate effectively with the client and third parties is an essential part of the training programme.
 - e. Developing ethical values and attitudes
Practical training should help the student to develop appropriate ethical values and attitudes expected of a professional accountant in performance of his work.
- 4.2 Following features in a training programme are expected to make the practical experience more effective and meaningful:
- a. It is preferable to assign all aspects of the work to a Student in progressive stages rather than small portions of unrelated jobs. The assignment should be discussed with the Student in advance and he should be informed about the nature of the client's business, the general economic conditions in which the client operates and special features, if any, regarding the assignment. The following steps may be taken in this direction:
 - Ensuring that before undertaking the work, the Student is advised of the objectives of the task and receives the knowledge, skill and understanding required to perform the work effectively.
 - As a normal part of the supervisory process providing necessary explanation, instructions or correction during the work.
 - Clarifying relevant issues during the review of completed work.
 - b. For maximum benefit, it is recommended that the review of working papers should be conducted in the presence of the Student, and additional work or inquiry should be assigned to the same Student. It needs little emphasis that practical experience should not be confined to particular areas of work, but should cover all aspects in which he / she is required to acquire experience.
 - c. Review of the Student's work on a continuous basis would ensure that work performed by the Student is of requisite standard. Deficiencies in the work experience, if any, can be taken care of while allocating subsequent assignments. MRT is to ensure that Students are rotated on various jobs / client assignments. Such a review would also assist the MRT in subsequent completion of training records and evaluation of the Student's performance.

Arrangement for pooling of resources amongst Training Organizations or secondments to industry or other suitable organizations are being encouraged to make up any deficiencies in training and to expose the Student to multidisciplinary work and to a variety of business situations.

4.3 Training Organizations

- a. The MRT represents an important link between the Student and the Institute. Further, in order to complete the whole process of implementation of Training Regulations and achieve the required results, the Institute has laid down some benchmarks for MRT in a Training Organization as described in Training Regulations.
- b. A Training Organization would also nominate Counseling Person(s) and Training Supervisor(s) for effective conduct of training functions in its offices. Where the incharge of a Training Office in a Training Organization is a Member other than a partner in that Training Organization, that Member shall be designated as a Counseling Person or Supervisor who shall report to that Training Organization's nominated MRT.
- c. The Committee will nominate Authorisation Sub-Committee to evaluate an applicant for functioning as a Training Organization. The Sub-Committee may appoint an Appraisal Consultant for this purpose, where so required. The Institute will extend appropriate advice if requested by the applicants who are encouraged to seek such assistance. The authorisation process for Appraisal as an approved Training Organization is set out in Annexure A.
- d. Appraisal / Monitoring of the Training Organization may be outsourced to consultants or ICAP representatives may be deputed for these tasks.
- e. The Committee shall give or withhold approval to organizations applying to become or to remain Training Organizations. The authorisation process should not take more than 4 months from the date of receipt of application, provided all conditions are met.
- f. In order to assist in the transition, provisions may be made for, as approved by the Council, for existing firms conducting training.
- g. The existing arrangements for training will continue so far as the Students already under training are concerned; however, their inclusion under the new scheme for the purpose of maintaining their training records is encouraged.

4.4 Theoretical Training by a Training Organization

Theoretical training programme should include the following:

- a. An induction course for new Students introducing them to the structure and practices of the Training Organization/Training Office(s), training records to be maintained, requirements regarding professional attitude and ethical standards, general behaviour, office discipline and dealing with client personnel and third parties;
- b. Periodic courses, whether conducted in-house or formal courses organised outside the Training Organization at appropriate responsibility levels may include:

- Preparation of statutory accounts
- Analytical review of accounts
- Preparation of working papers
- Introduction of new auditing and accounting standards or major changes in these standards or in relevant local laws, pronouncements or practices with emphasis on practical areas
- Introduction of continuing developments in the auditing techniques to ensure efficiency in planning, execution and finalisation of audit assignments Overall project management skills emphasising basic supervisory, communication and presentation skills
- Interaction and usage of computer information system and hands-on computer training
- Flow-charting of internal control systems, etc

In-house theoretical training may be carried out by Training Organization or jointly by a consortium of Training Organizations. The Institute would help by holding classes from time to time for theoretical / simulated training.

4.5 Personal and Professional Development

In addition to the technical knowledge, the Students should develop the following work competencies, which are elaborated in subsequent passage:

- Skills for overall management of assignments
- Communication, presentation and interpersonal skills
- Commercial awareness
- Business management skills
- Professional ethics, values and attitudes

Above skills and attitudes are essential for the Students to achieve maturity and experience while performing their work. These should be introduced among the Students through induction courses and subsequently developed through in-house training. MRT should be aware of the need to identify and explain matters relating to these competencies as they arise during the normal work of the Training Organization. Special emphasis should be placed on group discussions and presentations by the Student.

The MRT should facilitate the understanding of the Institute's ethical and technical standards and also such matters as:

- Confidentiality of clients' affairs
- Publicity and Advertising
- Obtaining professional work, etc

The MRT should monitor Students' understanding of and development in above skills and attitude at each half yearly review.

The MRT is to encourage participation of Students in CPD activities.

5. MONITORING, COUNSELLING AND SUPERVISION

Throughout the training period, the Students' work must be properly managed, monitored and supervised. Training management can be divided into three broad areas and roles:

Area of Responsibility	Training Role
Management	Member responsible for training
Counseling	Counseling person
On the job supervision	Supervisor

Larger Training Organizations may have more than one individual in each role. Smaller organizations may find that most, or all of the responsibilities, devolve upon the Member Responsible for Training. In order to carry out above responsibilities a training record system is put in place.

6. THE TRAINING RECORD SYSTEM

The effectiveness of the monitoring, counselling and supervisory arrangements relies absolutely on full usage of the recording system described below. The focal point of both monitoring the training and the training record system is a formal progress review which must be:

- undertaken at half yearly intervals; and
- based on an accurate record of the work undertaken, compiled over the previous six months by the Student, and reliable written assessments of performance and progress in the following main areas by the MRT:
 - Technical knowledge and skills
 - Personal and professional development
 - Examination study and success

The aims of these arrangements are:

- to confirm that the Student is on course to meet the training requirements for membership of the Institute; and
- to enable the MRT in providing the Student the prescribed certificate of completion of work experience on successful completion of training period.

For achieving the above purposes Institute has developed the training records which are set out in Annexure B. Students should maintain such records on a regular basis and Training Organization shall ensure that such records are maintained and made available to representatives of the Institute for monitoring of the Training Organization as mentioned in para 7.

7. MONITORING OF A TRAINING ORGANISATION BY THE INSTITUTE

The Institute would develop a standard software package and provide to Training Organizations to facilitate maintenance of records. Formation of a Training Evaluation Committee would be considered by the Institute once Training Regulations are up and running.

The Institute would monitor (at least once in three years) the approved Training Organizations principally based on a review of records maintained by the Training Organization. In addition, representatives / consultants as authorised by the Institute may visit the Training Organization if the Training Organization is not fully in compliance with the criteria for Training Organization. Initially only Desktop monitoring may be carried out based on prescribed returns. Subsequently monitoring may be gradually made more effective. Visits and reviews would be constructive, educative, reformative and comprise essentially of the following:

- a. Ensuring that regulations and procedures relating to training are understood and complied with.
- b. Observation of training policies & procedures and related resources.
- c. Checking of records of training programme; theoretical training and courses conducted for professional development of skills.
- d. Interviews with MRT and other partners (if any).
- e. Interviews with Counselling persons and Supervisors.
- f. Review of six monthly training record (Form III of Annexure B) maintained by the Training Organization.
- g. Review of other Student records such as: leave records; overtime records; and Student attendance records.

8. POOLING OF RESOURCES AND SECONDMENT ARRANGEMENTS

8.1 Pooling of Resources for Training

Pooling of resources for training is envisaged amongst Training Organizations where a Training Organization may not be in a position to provide experience in a competency area and may enter on a mutually agreed arrangement with another Training Organization for the benefit of the Students. The Institute would facilitate pooling arrangements. The procedure to be followed may be flexible as long as the following requirements are met:

- a. the aggregate period for such training arrangements shall not exceed one year;
- b. the receiving Training Organization shall not be entitled to train more than four such Students at a time;
- c. the number of Student(s) received from another Training Organization shall be within the Student quota of the receiving Training Organization;

- d. the receiving Training Organization shall maintain prescribed training records and forward the same to the sending Training Organization upon completion of agreed training period; and
- e. during such period of training the sending Training Organization will pay stipend to the Students, instead of the receiving Training Organization and shall be responsible for complying with training regulations and guidelines.
