Javaid Jahangir thanked for the meeting and welcomed the opportunity of ASB meeting. He informed that the constitution of Pakistan gives the sole mandate to AGP for setting the framework of accounts preparation and its audit for district, provincial and federal government. He apprised that CGA has a robust recording and reporting system based on SAP ERP. AGP informed that he has trained and skilled workforce of more than 3500 people to carry out his constitutional mandate. A detailed presentation was given by the CGA representative on the government accounting system.

All ASB members appreciated the role of AGP as country’s supreme audit institution under the Constitution of Pakistan and significant steps taken and milestones achieved by AGP over the period. The participants discussed the need for making efforts in changing public perception about the role of public sector accounting, more transparency and timely corrective action on audit observations raised by AGP. There was consensus that in public interest there is scope of further improving the public sector financial reporting and to carry out a gap analysis of current accounting practices and study on the viability of implementing International Public Sector Accounting Standards (IPSAS) in Pakistan. In this regard, president ICAP and AGP agreed that there is a need for further collaboration between the institutions, and future partnership could be underpinned by consultation, coordination, cooperation and exchange of information.

Good corporate governance is essential to create trust and engagement between companies and their investors. Whatever governance is in practice, it requires qualitative reporting. Corporate governance as well as financial and other information are communicated to stakeholders through the Annual Report. Annual reports are adjudged in accordance with the BCR Criteria. The Criteria has been revamped for 2018 and it’s available on the websites of both the Institutes. While revamping the criteria, inspiration has been taken from the ‘Content Elements’ (disclosures) of the International Integrated Reporting Framework (IR). Companies are encouraged to adopt (IR) by fully applying the ‘Fundamental Concepts’ and ‘Guiding Principles’ of (IR) into their corporate reporting in addition to the ‘Content Elements’ (disclosures) of (IR), as covered in the revised Criteria.

The revised Criteria aims to promote a cohesive approach to corporate reporting that will improve the quality of information available to the investors and other key stakeholders of an organisation. It will also help elevate the level of accountability and stewardship of reporting organisations. It will bring corporate reporting in Pakistan in line with global best practices.

The board has sought to establish principles that would classify financial instruments by reference to the presence or absence of particular features. To establish those principles, the board has identified a financial liability would have either one or both of the following features:
- The issuer can be required to pay cash or to hand over another financial asset before liquidation.
- The issuer has promised a particular return to the holder regardless of the issuer’s own performance and share price.

The board’s preferred approach would classify a financial instrument as a financial liability if the instrument contains (a) an unavoidable contractual obligation to transfer cash or other financial assets other than at liquidation (the ‘timing’ feature); and/or (b) an unavoidable contractual obligation for an amount independent of the issuer’s available economic resources (the ‘amount’ feature). Financial instruments would be classified as equity instruments if they do not contain either of these two features.

The Discussion Paper also considers a number of different variables common in such derivatives and analyses their effect on classification, applying the board’s preferred approach. The board also examines presentation and disclosure requirements.

The staff concludes that the use of IPSAS for non-profit-seeking entities should not give rise to significant compatibility issues when state-owned enterprises reporting under IFRS, or a similar national framework, are consolidated into a government’s financial statements. Keeping up with the global trends has become essential for organisations so that they are able to keep track of their significant goals. The major internal shift in 2018 is the focus on technology: how it can be used to engage, replace, hunt, and connect with people. This year, the biggest trends in HR revolve around technology. Listed below are three top trends of HR in 2018:

Talent Hunt: With the sectors growing and emerging at a breakneck speed, war to hunt the best talent will become even more crucial. With the advent of social media, headhunting and getting in touch with candidates has become easier for the recruiter. For instance, talent pools can now be identified by searching simply through hash tags, sub-forums or other online communication methods.

Remote Workforce: Whether it’s a coffee shop, workout places, home or anywhere else in the world – there’s Wi-Fi! This has made possible for recruiters to hire people from anywhere in the world. Many start-ups are now almost built on remote teams. This is a way of giving work-life balance to employees to boost their retention rate, and for recruiters, internet has opened up a pool of candidates for them. From video conferencing to virtual trainings to other collaboration tools, this trend is only going to go on an upswing.

Blind Hiring: To avoid unconscious bias (based on the demographic data of candidates) during the screening and interview processes, many organisations have shifted towards blind hiring. This means recruiters have been focusing more on an individual’s achievements and abilities – many have installed various recruitment software that anonymise and screen candidates purely based on their achievements and skills. Thus, this allows companies to build a more diverse workforce picked on merit.
